

POLIN Meeting Point – Summer Education School

3rd edition

August 13-27, 2017

Warsaw, Łódź, Zduńska Wola

LOCAL MULTICULTURALISM

preliminary programme (please note that the programme can be modified)

Dear Candidates,

the POLIN Meeting Point – Summer Education School is an intensive two-week educational programme of POLIN Museum of the History of Polish Jews in Warsaw that offers young people from Poland, Israel, Germany and Ukraine the possibility to meet in an international group and take part in a series of lectures, workshops and discussions.

In this year edition, we would like you to focus on the topic of Local Multiculturalism. The example of Zduńska Wola – a town in the Łódź Province, before World War II a rapidly growing Polish-Jewish-German centre – will serve as a point of departure for the discussion.

In the first week of the course – during lectures, discussions and workshops, and within the space of the POLIN Museum's core exhibition – we will discover tools used to study multiculturalism from the historical perspective. We will have a look at local studies as a research topic and will confront the myth of pre-war multicultural Poland.

A trip to Łódź and Zduńska Wola to be organised in the second week of the course will help the participants discover the multicultural past of both places and the contemporary local residents' approach to diversity. Is the memory of multicultural past being cherished? Does this heritage play a role in building the local identity? The participants will be encouraged to seek answers to these and other questions.
